Streamline for faster benefits

Mid-sized fashion companies face the same challenges as large, multinational companies, whether they are manufacturers or brand owners that design, source, and distribute. They have to handle high order volumes, manage a wide variety of product lines, and use complex supply chains. The difference is that mid-sized companies do not have the same resources as their larger counterparts to implement sophisticated IT solutions. The oversimplified, generic systems many opt for, implemented using a one-size fits all approach, do not allow them to compete effectively in today's global marketplace.

These companies need a different approach—an approach that combines the planning, sourcing, production, distribution, and finance features they need today. They need a streamlined implementation process that can deliver benefits in weeks, not months or years, and the foundation for the expanded features they'll need as their businesses evolve and grow.
